Tempe News Notes

EARLY MORNING FIRE RAZES TEMPE HOUSE

The Tempe House, one of the early landmarks of the town, went up in fire shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday morning and for a time the adjoining buildings and even the entire block, of which it was the nucleus, were threatened by the fast spreading flames. Fortunately quick work on the part of at least a half hundred citizens who volunteered their services in fighting the fire, brought quick returns, however, and with three hoses playing on the structure, the flames were kept well within the high brick walls on either side. Single damage was sustained by the Grand ballroom and pool hall on the north of the building and that establishment will probably remain closed for a day or two, but the Pioneer meat market on the south sustained such little damage that it was able to conduct business about as usual yesterday.

How or in what part of the establishment the flames first caught is not known. After the fire had gotten its way out of the front it was sighted by a fireman in a lodging house across the street. The alarm was promptly turned in, but by the time hose carts had arrived and water was available the entire structure was but a seething mass. The Company C armory adjoined the building on the north in the second story apartment and water was played on that in time to save it from any serious damage. Several abandoned rooms over the meat market were destroyed.

The fact that the Tempe House was one of the first buildings to be built in the block and that it was founded on both sides by heavy brick walls undoubtedly saved a majority of the other establishments next to it. The building was owned by Mons E. Shillert and was occupied by R. C. Shillert as a pool hall. Both parties carried insurance on their properties that will cover about half of the loss sustained.

No. 3 truck and an engine from Phoenix made a run to within a mile of the fire. There it was met by Assistant Chief Simmons, who turned it back, as the fire was at that time well under control.

PLEASING PERFORMANCE

"The Wreck of the Hesperus," which was given Friday evening at the Normal auditorium, was a decided success and was much enjoyed by those present. It is to be remembered that when any musician attempts a work of this sort in a small town and with a limited number of trained voices, he or she must be given credit for the effort. Miss Myrtle Rice, under whose direction the performance was presented, made a success of a difficult piece of music and the musicians of the town were pleased to see it. Only those who have attempted it can know the difficulties and discouragements involved in producing a musical work with the assistance of amateur singers. There was, as is always the case, a notable dearth of tenors, but even with this deficiency the chorus as a whole was pleasing and the solos well taken care of. The two solos rendered by Miss Martin Cook, previously to the cantata presentation were pleasing and her voice appeared well adapted to songs of that nature. The girls' chorus did splendidly and their numbers were enjoyed by all and the reception accorded them was a just reward for the time spent in their preparation.

An automobile accident in which two were injured occurred Friday evening shortly after seven o'clock when a Fike stage collided with a transmission pole about four miles west of Mesa. A party of young people consisting of Misses Melba Pomerooy, Ann Johnson and Leona McElwain, and Messrs. Martin Rice and Walter Hodder were on the road to Tempe to attend a musicale.
